

SOMETHING NEW IN U.S. RECRUITING

Big Air Squadron is to Visit Fairmont in Near Future.

Forty-six cities and towns in six states, Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia, will be visited by the photographic recruiting expedition which will leave Langley Field, Va. The expedition will travel in five Curtiss H. airplanes, accompanied by a motor truck and lorry. The truck and lorry will be a complete photographic developing and printing establishment containing all the latest apparatus for the production of finished work and a place where recruits may obtain their first insight into the work performed upon the film and plate after it is taken from the camera.

The airplanes will fly in formation and remain in each place visited a sufficient time to acquaint all interested with the work and object of the trip. The usual aerial acrobatics will be indulged in.

An advance airplane and scout will select landing fields and map out the course to be followed by the expedition.

The airplanes are equipped with the latest type of aerial cameras and photographs will be made from the airplanes of places passed over, from other airplanes of the expedition in flight and from the ground utilizing the gunnery oblique and other cameras.

Small photographic maps of the various towns and surrounding country and a demonstration showing how mosaics are produced from the photograph to a scale will be made.

The photographic division requires specially qualified men, preferably those who have had some experience in amateur or professional photography. The recruits are assigned to the U. S. Army school of aerial photography at Langley Field, Va., where they receive a thorough course not only in photography but draft map interpretation, making mosaics, and general aerial survey. Incidentally they may become familiar with the operation of the airplane and dirigible.

The Army dirigible A-4 is now at Langley Field, also a Handley-Page airplane capable of taking off with twenty-five men and a complete aerial photographic outfit. It is the policy at this field as far as possible to assign men from certain communities into sections by themselves; that is, thirty men and an officer from eastern Massachusetts would make up a section known as the Boston Section of Aerial Photography. This serves to create a splendid feeling and hearty cooperation which at times runs into a friendly competition as to which section or team should produce the best work.
